Gay students voice their concerns

By JOHN FERA
Staff writer

Members of the Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual and Allies Union, said the community of Charleston is not as conservative as it has been made out to be, but they stressed ignorance and bigotry still exist on campus.

Group members who talked with The Daily Eastern News requested their real names not be printed.

"I really haven't had any problems with people in Charleston," said "Jason." "I'm from a small town and comparing it to Charleston, I'd say that Charleston is very liberal."

Jason said he has noticed that his teachers, more so than students, have been receptive to the plights of gay individuals.

"My professors seem to have a lot of knowledge about the subject (homosexuality)," "Jason" said. "The teachers here seem to be very understanding and educated in that subject while making a conscious effort to help the (gay) students out."

"Sally" is a former graduate student who lives within the community. She said most people in Charleston seem to accept her lifestyle.

"People in this area act very supportive of my lifestyle," "Sally" said. "The people in Charleston are more educated than others from smaller towns nearby. That's probably the reason why so many people don't accept homosexuality, it's because they don't have enough education."

Another Eastern student, "Zack," agreed with the statement that Charleston appears to be more open-minded than other communities.

"I attended Milikin University in Decatur last year," "Zack" said. "Decatur was a very close-minded city. Charleston is a little more liberal than other towns, but has its prejudices too."

Members of the Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual and Allies Union were "extremely disturbed but not surprised" by Tuesday's letter to the editor, published in The News, in which the writers condemned homosexuality.

"The letter was totally taken out of context," "Jason" said. "The part saying gay people are child molesters is not true at all. It just shows the ignorance some students still have (concerning homosexuality). Society, is sometimes discriminatory towards gay people and we just want to break away from the discrimination."

"Paul," another member of the group, said the letter in Wednesday's paper shows precisely why Eastern is in dire need for a gay student union.

"That letter just tells me that we do need a student union," Paul said. "It was full of homophobia and hatred. We need this organization to educate people like them."

"Eastern is the only state university in Illinois that I know of which doesn't have a gay student union. Therefore, it is beyond necessary and would be a gigantic, progressive step forward if we would become recognized officially," he said.

"Paul" wanted to clear up the controversy

County candidates point to experience

By KAREN MEDINA
Staff writer

Coles County residents were given the opportunity to question and meet candidates seeking county offices Wednesday night at a political forum and informal reception at St. Charles Borromeo Catholic Church.

Sponsored by the Coles County League of Women Voters and the Charleston Chapter of Zonta, an international business and professional women's service organization, the forum drew about 75 people.

The following candidates attended: Republican Vicki Hite and Democrat Mick Highland, both candidates for Coles County circuit clerk; Republican Mark Novak and Democrat Steve Ferguson, both candidates for Coles County State's Attorney.

Coles County coroner candidates Republican John R. Schilling and Democrat Michael C. Nichols.

When asked about what sets them apart from their opponents, most candidates pointed to their career backgrounds and experience.

Hite stressed her qualifications from service since March as Deputy circuit clerk and her six years as an administrative assistant to an appellate court judge.

Highland cited his 20 years of experience in private business and finance as needed experience for the circuit clerk post.

Both coroner candidates mentioned their medical and forensic backgrounds as decision-making factors for voters in the fall election.

There were also 12 district county board seats representing six districts: Wayne Simmons and Jacqueline Bacon, Marge Knoop, Eli Sidwell, Patsy Black, Donald F. Tingley and Mark Hutti.

League member Gail Mason, an Eastern speech communications professor, served as moderator and presented prepared questions to the participating candidates.

The audience also got a chance to submit question to candidates. Among other inquiries, audience members asked what made the candidates decide to run for office and why the posts they seek are important to county government.

Some of the questions that were asked included changes that could be made in the office of Coles County Circuit Clerk, an amendment to the Crime Victim Rights Act and the questioning of a coroner's duties especially approaching grieving families.

Another issue that was a hot topic among candidates was the issue of expanding the Coles County Jail.

Candidates for the Coles County board debated the jail question and Tingley and Knoop agreed they wouldn't vote to expand the facility.

Knoop added that she would like to see the money spent on rehabilitation instead of incarceration.

Vicki Hite, candidate for Coles County Circuit Clerk, answers questions at a county forum Wednesday night at St. Charles Borromeo Catholic Church.

Eli Sidwell told the audience he is in favor of expanding the jail because of lack of space separating minors from adults and female inmates from male prisoners.

Charleston Zonta Club member Janet Messenger said she felt the forum gave a chance for residents to meet and question the candidates.

"I think it's going very well and I think we had a fairly good turnout and it was a good opportunity for people to hear the county board candidates," Messenger said.

HIV trial postponed; new witness will testify

By CHRIS SUNDHEIM
City editor

The attorney defending a Charleston man charged with criminal sexual assault has postponed his client's hearing to present an expert witness.

Timothy Lunsford, 24, who had been charged with criminal transmission of the HIV virus, was to appear in court Wednesday on remaining charges of criminal sexual assault stemming from a July 14 incident where he allegedly raped a Mattoon woman at her apartment.

Wednesday's hearing was cancelled to allow more time to schedule a Charleston psychologist to testify on Lunsford's behalf.

Coles County Judge Ashton Waller ruled last week that Illinois' law regarding criminal transmission of the virus that causes AIDS is unconstitutional because it is too vague.

Lunsford's attorney, Greg Bonelli of Mattoon, contended the law didn't specify which acts violate the law.

With regard to the criminal sexual assault charges, Bonelli argued police illegally obtained a statement from Lunsford that should not be considered in the prosecution.

Bonelli added that during the time of the attack, Lunsford was under the influence of heavy medication and could not fully comprehend the circumstances surrounding his actions.

He plans to ask Jerry Boyd, a Charleston clinical psychologist, as an expert witness, to prove the statement was illegally obtained. As a public defender, Bonelli must first receive the court's permission to hire Boyd.

Assistant State's Attorney Mark Novak, who is prosecuting the case, has said he plans to appeal Waller's decision on the criminal HIV transmission charges.

The U.S. Supreme Court is set to hear a similar case next month. A St. Clair County public defender also succeeded in having the law declared unconstitutional.

Trailmobile employee contracts TB

CHARLESTON (AP) — Coles County health officials are offering free tests to employees at a Trailmobile factory after a co-worker was diagnosed with tuberculosis.

"We are highly concerned about the health and welfare of our employees and will cooperate completely," said Mike Williamson, a Trailmobile manager. The employee was diagnosed last Friday, he said.

Coles County normally has three or four cases a year, which is about average for a county of 51,644, said Robbie Butler of the county tuberculosis treatment board.

"We are discussing the symptoms of the disease with employees and are giving free TB tests," she said.

Tuberculosis can be fatal. Trailmobile, which has about 1,100 employees, makes flatbed and refrigerated trailers.

Interest in social problems leads Becker to Nobel Prize

CHICAGO (AP) — Economics and sociology professor Gary S. Beckersays he has "enjoyed being unpopular" for the theories on crime, divorce, discrimination and other social problems that on Tuesday won him the Nobel Prize in economics.

"It's good to go against the grain," said the 61-year-old professor, the 15th person connected to the University of Chicago to win the Nobel economics prize in 22 years.

Becker's theories that every aspect of human behavior can be analyzed from a business point of view were met with skepticism and distrust when he first advanced them in the 1950s, and they remained controversial.

"I have enjoyed being unpopular at times," he said at a news conference on the university campus. Winning a Nobel Prize left him "happy, surprised, still in a bit of a shock," he said. "I didn't think it was going to happen this year."

Sherwin Rosen, chairman of the university economics department, said other economists were suspicious of Becker's work because he applied the discipline to unconventional subjects.

"He has redefined the boundaries of economics to include problems in economics that had gone out of style," Rosen said.

Becker said he aimed to solve social problems when he began teaching economics 30 years ago. His theory that human behavior follows the same rational principles, whether it involves a household, a business or an organization, has influenced sociology, demography and criminology.

He suggests people choose their level of education depending on its economic consequences and that criminals weigh the probability of getting caught more than the type of punishment.

Becker advocates marital contracts that would spell out child custody and property division in the event of divorce. The divorce rate might be lowered if men and women treated matrimony as long-term agreement, he said.

that has stemmed from last Friday's chalking that occurred throughout the university.

"I was involved in the chalking," "Paul" said. "However, the people that wrote (the offense messages towards heterosexuals) were not students from Eastern. They went off on their own, and we had no idea until the next day that those negative messages were chalked. They did not have any permission to write what they did," he added.

"Paul" said he has been happy with the initial response from Student Government members.

"I'm very proud of the way the senate has handled the issue so far," "Paul" said. "They haven't said anything negative in any way."

"Judy" added there are many myths and ideas running rampant about gay people that simply are not true.

"People generally are scared," "Judy" said. "We are not out in any way to convert people to our choosing. If someone is gay, we encourage them to join our union but everyone in the world is different."

A hot topic of conversation that has stirred up controversy lately is the talk of student protest against the formation of a recognized organization.

"I would ask if the protesters are doing it out of ignorance or if they're looking at both sides of the issue," "Zach" said. "A mature individual would

Jazz combo begins festival

By PILAR MUELLER
Staff writer

Eastern will be hosting a festival of music featuring the sounds of contemporary, new age, big band and piano jazz at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the Doudna Fine Arts Center.

As an added attraction, pianist George Maurer will be performing in the Martin Luther King, Jr.

University Union Grand Ballroom.

"A variety of jazz music will be performed including several compositions and arrangements written by students," said Sam Fagaly, coordinator of the combo concerts.

The jazz combo concert is the first in the series of two. Michael Levinsky and Henry Butler, both of the Music department, will be conducting the two groups.

Student jazz award winner, Jim

Pryor, will be playing under the direction of Henry Butler. Pryor has won several national awards including the 1991 Down Beat Magazine Award, Fagaly said.

The University Board Performing Arts Committee will also host pianist George Maurer.

"Maurer is a contemporary jazz pianist from Minnesota," said Jennifer Channell, performing arts director.

Senate discusses holiday library hours

By NICHOLL A. MCGUIRE
Staff Writer

Student Government received a response to a resolution, which was passed two weeks ago, requesting extended library hours on holidays and weekends at its meeting Wednesday night.

Student Body President Brian Riordan read a letter from the Dean of Library Services, Allen Lanham, that stated it is fiscally impossible for the library to implement the request made by senate.

The senate also discussed a change in Eastern's current grading scale to include pluses and minuses in students' final grades.

Senate members felt an advantage to this type of a system would be to raise a student's GPA by two-tenths of a point for each plus. However, members also recognized the system could work to a student's disadvantage as well, by lowering a GPA by two-tenths of a point for every minus received.

Senate decided to postpone any legislation on the subject until student opinion could be evaluated. Riordan suggested putting the proposal as a referendum for students to vote on in the next Student Government elections.

The Senate also approved the appointment of student members to the parking ticket appeals board. Preparations for today's meeting at the municipal building were also discussed concerning the stop sign issue.

Senate looked over two out of three Recognized Student Organization applications. One application reviewed, but not approved, was the men's soccer club because it was restricted to men.

New dump site needed

SPRINGFIELD (AP) — Gov. Jim Edgar said Wednesday he is reluctant to force a radioactive waste dump on another community after an independent panel rejected the only site that had agreed to accept it.

"I have a little hard time kind of shoving that down somebody's throat," Edgar said at a news briefing marking his return to the Statehouse after a hospital stay last week to clear a blocked heart artery.

"I definitely think you've got to have some public input," Edgar said. "You can't ignore the wishes of the people whose lives ... are definitely going to be impacted by this decision." The town of Martinsville had agreed to serve as the site for a 1,400-acre dump that would handle radioactive waste from power plants, hospitals, research centers and universities in Illinois and Kentucky.

But an independent commission headed by former state Supreme Court Justice Seymour Simon rejected the northeastern Illinois site Friday. The defeat came after a daylong hearing marked by concerns about the project's integrity. The committee found Martinsville unsuited after weighing scientific evidence.

The state has spent $85 million over five years trying to find the best site.

The commission was created by the legislature to decide whether the site met technical requirements, was safe and had the support of local officials.

Federal law requires each state to build its own dump or reach an agreement with another state.

"Unfortunately there were a lot of mistakes made," Edgar said. "I think we need to take a look at that whole process."

But the governor hedged when asked if that could mean changing the requirement that a community must agree to accept the dump.

"It perhaps might come to that. I hope not," he said.

The change would require legislative approval.

Bar battleground growing problem in Charleston

The City of Charleston sent mixed messages to Eastern's student body Wednesday.

While Police Chief Herb Steidinger was saying bar-going college students are becoming a burden to the police force, Mayor and Liquor Commissioner Wayne Lanman let four bars convicted for liquor code violations off with a slap on the wrist – fining them $1,000 and not allowing the establishments to keep their liquor licenses.

Two alcohol-related incidents over the past three weeks involving students and the Charleston police have proved that something needs to be done concerning the amount of drunken disorder in Charleston.

Editorial

Both the city and the university need to take action and examine how they can curb a growing problem that may soon reach a new level of crisis.

A certain amount of irresponsible drinking may be a given on any college campus, but for intoxicated students to threaten and even attempt to harm police officers is beyond the acceptable realm of behavior.

While Charleston police can't be blamed for using force in the weekend incident at Mother's Bar, that is definitely not the answer needed.

Student Government should take the on-campus lead in searching for a solution. A committee should look into the problems of college drinking, examining the usefulness of a 19-year-old bar entry age, the amount of local non-alcoholic activities and the money spent on handling alcohol-related crimes.

While vowing to continue the "covert operations" that snagged Panther's, Thirsty's, Roc's and Jerry's Pub, Lanman's weak punishment showed no backing of Steidinger and his complaints. The city should be willing to hand out stiffer punishments to bars, especially like the repeat offenders sent before Lanman Tuesday.

Public drunkenness is a crime, and on any day students can be seen staggering home from miles away. Permanent residents of Charleston understandably have the consistent complaint about the noise, rudeness and carelessness of intoxicated Eastern students.

The police need to crackdown and examine the possibility of placing some officers on a foot beat near campus and the alcoholic mecca the square becomes every weekend.

Bush/Quayle provide solid leadership

Republican President George Bush and Vice President Dan Quayle's leadership means jobs, opportunities and stronger, more prosperous families secure in their communities and in the world.

Our president believes the strength in our economy comes from the people, not from our government, from the creativity of the individual, not from bureaucratically directed "industrial policies." George Bush believes in a government that sees the economic empowerment of individual Americans as the key to our continued prosperity.

The Bush/Quayle economic policy's cut wasteful government spending and provides solid, long-term growth through incentives which encourage investment and job creation. Bush/Quayle policies say the best way to spur economic growth and create new jobs is to keep inflation and interest rates low and control federal spending.

George Bush and Dan Quayle believe that education is our most powerful economic program, our most important trade program and our most effective anti-poverty program. Their six national goals (by the year 2000) are that every child will start school ready to learn, the high school graduation rate will be over 90 percent and students will be competent in English, math, science, history and geography.

Every school in America will ensure that students are prepared for responsible citizenship, further learning and productive employment and U.S. students will be first in the world in science and math. Every adult will be literate and able to compete in the global economy and schools will be free of drugs and violence.

Bush and Quayle launched the America 2000 grass-roots education strategy to meet national goals. Already, more than 1,400 communities in 44 states have embraced the America 200 strategy advocating educational choice so parents – not government – can choose the best public, private or religious schools for their children and be involved in what they learn.

The presidential health care plan will make quality care accessible by providing tax credits for poor families to buy a basic health care package. Within five years, nearly 30 million Americans will benefit from tax credits and deductions. It will limit out of control medical malpractice suits that drive up costs and drive out needed doctors. Most importantly, it will give consumers – not government – the right to choose which doctors they will and what care they will receive.

George Bush proposed and successfully fought for the first major rewrite of the Clean Air Act in 13 years. This landmark legislation will cut acid rain in half, reduce urban smog and cut toxic pollution by 90 percent. He believes that the polluter must pay for the damage they do to our environment.

One other very important issue is trust. Gov. Clinton cannot tell the truth about being a draft dodger, he was not straight about using drugs, he panders the issue, he has changed his views on abortion and war in order to (in his own words) "protect my political viability."

As Dan Quayle put it in Tuesday's debate, "Do you trust Bill Clinton to be our next president?"

Clinton/Gore represent real U.S. recovery

Nov. 3 will be decision-day for America.

The American people will choose between the Democratic ticket of Gov. Bill Clinton and Sen. Al Gore – offering new and exciting policies that create more opportunity – or the old worn-out, trickle-down policies of Republican President George Bush and Vice President Dan Quayle – which favor the rich and powerful.

The policies of Ronald Reagan, Bush and Quayle over the last 12 years have brought this nation to the brink of economic paralysis and collapse. After four years of the slowest economic growth since the great depression, George Bush is still in denial.

Let's look at the facts. Since 1980, Illinois alone has lost more than 300,000 high-wage manufacturing jobs. Due to the Bush/Quayle policies, the United States has gone from the greatest seller, lender and creditor nation to the world's largest buyer, borrower and debtor nation.

New York Gov. Mario Cuomo pointed out, "We buy from Japan and Germany and other nations the things we used to make and sell to them... giving them our dollars for their cars and clothes." Something is fundamentally wrong with our economy. Our high-wage industrial jobs have been replaced by low-wage, dead-end jobs.

The evidence is overwhelming, yet Bush continues to hope, wish and pray the American people will be fooled again by his old 1988 song, "Don't Worry, Be Happy."

Sorry, Mr. President, but it won't work this time. Bill Clinton and Al Gore have a plan to revitalize not just the economy, but the American spirit which yearns to be awakened from its 12-year slumber.

We need to learn how to challenge, inspire and uplift one another instead of continuing to use, manipulate and divide one another.

Bill Clinton and Al Gore have a plan to invest in America; something that should have been done long ago. They want to make health care a right by insuring those 38 million Americans who lack health insurance. They want to invest in infrastructure – not only to rebuild bridges and roads – but providing people with jobs.

Bill Clinton and Al Gore will provide real family values by signing the family leave bill into law and by fully funding head start. Under a Clinton/Gore administration, the government will respect a woman's choice on the very private issue of abortion.

Clinton and Gore want to create a National Service Trust Fund which would allow young people to go to college by funding their education and then repay society by contributing their skills to their local community.

They also have the foresight to know that we need our scientists to invest their energies, not in building better weapons of mass destruction, but in developing cleaner energy sources to help save the environment.

In order to fund these programs, they will ask the rich and powerful to once again pay their fair share.

The supply-side economic policies of the last 12 years have hurt many, but as Gore asserted at the Democratic Convention, "You can't kill hope that easily. Not in America. Not here, where a cynic is just a disappointed idealist in disguise; a dreamer yearning to dream again."

Don't be left behind, invest in the future and vote Clinton/Gore on Nov. 3.

– Jason Swingler is a member of University Democrats and a guest columnist for The Daily Eastern News.

CAA continues Major Review

By TERESA JOHNSON
Staff writer

The Council on Academic Affairs will continue its Review of the Major, concentrating on the Major in botany, at its 2 p.m. Thursday meeting in the Ar-Tuscola room in the Martin Luther King Jr. University Union.

Bill Weidler, acting chair of the botany department, will answer three questions according to CAA's review format of the major, said CAA chair Kathlene Shank.

According to the CAA framework of reviewing a major, objectives of the department should be specified, and a system should be developed for how well the department is achieving those objectives.

The council will also vote on the revision of course proposals for Political Science 3363 and Biology 4465. The original name of Political Science 3363 is "Government and Politics of China and Asia." The political science department is asking for a name change of the course to "Government and Politics in Asia-Pacific Rim" and a revision in the description.

The course proposal in geology will add two sentences to the course description. As stated in the course proposal, "This course is complementary to nearly all of the department's geology courses. This requirement must be met in the Eastern Illinois University Geology Field Station in the Black Hills of South Dakota."

"All course changes must be done by Oct. 29 for the 1993-94 catalog," Shank said.

Also at Thursday's meeting, the council will discuss the university's mission and goals relative to the Illinois Board of Higher Education draft and a resolution supporting change in the last sentence.

The draft states, "To retain and strengthen its unique character, Eastern Illinois University's mission should not be extended to providing more comprehensive graduate education, research or public service programs."

"The council wants to get away from the negative statement," Shank said. "None of the other (IBHE) mission goals end in a negative. We (CAA) want to end Eastern's mission description with a positive statement."

CAA will also vote on an amendment to change requirements for transfer students. The catalog currently states applicants must submit official transcripts from all institutions previously attended. With the approved amendment, the catalog would then add that official high school transcripts must also be submitted.

Shank said by making a change in the requirement, the university will be able to check the foreign language requirement and be able to find out the students ACT scores, which appears on the high school transcript.

The council will also discuss the evaluation of CAA's Review of the Major.

At last week's council meeting, the main topic of discussion was the suspension of the Review of the Major in which a subcommittee of CAA will be formed to examine written subcommittee reports for consistency and change as needed.

Stockdale takes backseat at debate

ATLANTA (AP) - It was the night of the hard sell, Dan Quayle and Al Gore pitching their tickets with high lines and wisecracks in a feisty vice presidential debate without a clear victor.

James B. Stockdale was the odd man out. In the perstudy interlude between presidential debates, the running mates were more caustic and confrontational than the men at the top of their tickets.

President Bush, Bill Clinton and independent Ross Perot meet Thursday night in their second debate, next Monday in the finale.

The vice presidential nominees argued, interrupted, contradicted in the first wide-open, head-on, clash since televised presidential campaign debating began, a format the Republicans had opposed.

Quayle took advantage of the open forum - questions from amoderator and time for head-on argument - to focus on trust as an issue, picking up a Bush theme in sharper words than the president employs himself.

When he wasn't talking trust he was talking taxes. And when he got the last word, he said Gore hadn't rebutted him. "Do you really believe that Bill Clinton will tell the truth?" he asked at the end. "And do you trust Bill Clinton to be your president?"

Gore bore down just as hard on the issue the Democrats want center stage, the economy, needling Quayle along the way.

Stockdale was literally the man in the middle, at the lectern between the major party nominees, and said he felt like an observer at a ping-pong game.

He fumbled with his pen, missed hearing one question, introduced himself as an amateur and acted like it. "I'm not a politician, everybody knows that," he said.

When the 90-minute debate was over, the Republicans said Quayle had accomplished his debate mission and the Democrats said Gore had won.

Tarble hosts film festival

By NICOLE NIEMAN and REBECCA EADES Staff writers

Eastern will be catering to the film fanatic's video taste buds Thursday at the Tarble Arts Center.

Tarble is hosting Columbia College's 17th annual Festival of Illinois Film and Video Artists screening from 7 to 9 p.m. in the lecture hall of Booth Library.

"This is the only downstate screening of this festival, the Spring Festival, which was shown in Chicago," said Donna Meeks, curator of education. "It is an honor to hold the festival here."

Film buffs will have the opportunity to view two award-winning narratives: Tom Radtke's "Greasy Lake," which portrays a mistaken identity incident and Fred Marx's "Hiding Out for Heaven," a tale of a teacher grading a short story of an amateur writer, who contributes his comments and corrections.

Viewers can also enjoy documentaries with a focus on women's struggles: "Jungleland: Women in Viet Nam," a senior project completed by Kelly Coffey.

"Women in Viet Nam" depicts the struggles women faced during and after the war. Yvonne Welbon's piece, "Monique," is an autobiography that uses storytelling to explore the adult's memory of her childhood.

"I am familiar with film and video art somewhat, and I think it'll challenge the concept of movies," Meeks said.

"I think that if students choose to attend this free film presentation, they'll find out the content and the works are very challenging. "These are not Hollywood films, they are independent films made by artists in Illinois."

Meeks is expecting a positive turnout for Thursday's festival of films.

"I think there will be a big turnout. I tell my students bring a date, it could be fun," Meeks said.

Admittance is free of charge and open to students and the Charleston community.

RHA will discuss United Way goal

By JENNIFER KROGH Staff writer

The Residence Hall Association will discuss the progress it has made in raising money for the United Way at its 5 p.m. meeting Thursday in Thomas Hall.

RHA President Rich Ruscitti said, "So far we are promoting the United Way in full-force."

The organization has already met its original goal of $300 through hall donations and fund raising activities. The halls and organizations that have contributed money are Carman, Taylor and Stevenson Halls as well as the National Residence Hall Honorary.

Although only three residence halls have made contributions, Ruscitti said he has no doubt RHA will receive donations from the rest of the hall councils.

"So far this semester I have been pleasantly surprised by the motivation and energy level of our members, visitors and executive board," Ruscitti said. "I am amazed that we had the motivation to raise $300 in one week for United Way."

In other business, a final report will be given on the success of RHA homecoming activities.

Ruscitti said RHA members walked in the parade and cheered on the football team to show their school spirit.

"Co-chairs Liane Brown and Bill Blanck did an outstanding job working on homecoming and they allowed RHA and BACCHUS to be represented well," Ruscitti said.

Also at the meeting, members will hear an update from RHA's haunted house committee. The haunted house will take place from 8 p.m. to midnight Oct. 27 and 28 in Thomas Hall.

RHA will also sponsor a "Cream the Housing Staff" program, following the RHA meeting on Oct. 22 in the Stevenson Lobby. People will get a chance to "cream," with cream pies, residence hall counselors or members of the NRHH.

All proceeds from the event will be donated to the Richard G. Enoch Scholarship and the Sean R. McKinney Memorial Scholarship.

Tombstones to cover Library Quad Monday

By MICHELLE HOKE Staff writer

On Monday, 72 tombstones adorned with Eastern student's names will be placed on the Library Quad to represent the number of alcohol-related deaths reported each day.

BACCHUS is sponsoring this awareness program to increase the consciousness of students concerning drinking, said Stephanie Tribby, an executive board member for BACCHUS. Monday's event will kick off National Collegiate Awareness Week.

"The names of the students will be randomly chosen by members of BACCHUS," Tribby said. The names will be chosen from Eastern's student name files, she said.

"The program is to raise awareness of the student body about drinking and its alternatives," Tribby said.

Some of the alternative activities scheduled during Alcohol Awareness Week include 50 cent bowling, with free shoe rental from 6 p.m. to 10:30 p.m. Tuesday and Thursday in the Martin Luther King Jr. University Union.

Throughout the week, free movies will be shown in the Union, Tribby said and next Friday, the Lighthouse will sponsor a dance from 9 p.m. until 1 a.m.

Terry Tumbarello, assistant to coordinator of the Office of Orientation/Aids, Alcohol and Drug Information said, "We would like students to be aware of the dangers, risks and responsibilities involving drinking."

Over 600 campuses and universities participate in Alcohol Awareness Week, Tumbarello said. Eastern has been an award-winning campus in the past, he added.

Earthquake claims 400 Egyptians

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Egypt's earthquake death toll climbed past 400 Tuesday, and officials broadcast appeals for calm among Egyptians terrified of another tremor.

Many prepared for a second night under the stars.

Authorities blamed the high death toll partly on panic stampedes but mainly on the many weak, old or poorly constructed buildings in the Cairo area.

A security official told Cairo television the search for survivors was called off Tuesday at all the scores of collapsed buildings in the capital area except for one: a 14-story apartment complex in the affluent suburb of Heliopolis.

Dozens of people were believed to be buried in the rubble, and relief workers were using their bare hands to sift through dust and stones and drills to cut through steel construction rods.

Many workers said they had little hope of finding anyone alive.

Police Maj. Gen. Nadir Noman, director of civil defense, said 11 bodies were pulled from the debris by early afternoon. As many as 15 people were found alive in the debris shortly after the quake.

Witnesses reported two people died Tuesday as three quake-weakened structures collapsed in the poor Sayeda Zeinab neighborhood.

Life was generally back to normal elsewhere — except for the rumors that "another big one" would again strike the city of 14 million.

Hundreds of aftershocks didn't help. Almost all were too feeble to be felt but not to be imagined. "Now I know what hell is like," said Nadia Ezzeddin, a housewife in Cairo's residential Zamalek district.

In hopes of calming the public, the official Cairo Radio and television broadcast a statement by Subhi Freiha, deputy director of the government's Helwan Observatory.

"All the observatory's recordings indicate that the situation is stable," Freiha said. "There is no need to worry."

U of I Hispanics raise issue of police violence

CHAMPAIGN (AP) — With angry minorities sitting behind him, University of Illinois Chancellor Morton Weir on Wednesday defended the school's treatment of Hispanic students and said no unusual force was used to oust protesters from a campus building last spring.

Testifying before a state Senate subcommittee, Weir recounted his efforts to listen to the concerns of Hispanics, who have demanded that he recruit more Hispanic students and professors.

Students and professors, however, told a different story, describing the campus as a hostile place for minorities and a police department comfortable with "Gestapo tactics."

"This is a crisis of ethnic and racial intolerance," said Juliet Walker, the first black woman to be promoted to full professor.

The subcommittee hearing was held in response to the May 5 protest at the administration building, when more than 100 students, most of them Hispanics, occupied the first floor.

But the panel, led by Sen. Miguel del Valle, D-Chicago, went beyond the concerns of Hispanics, welcoming opinions from blacks as well as Native Americans.

Weir said the budget for La Casa, the campus Hispanic cultural center, has been increased by $30,000, and the group has been given much autonomy.

Laettner signs with T'wolves

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The Minnesota Timberwolves on Wednesday signed top draft choice Christian Laettner to a six-year, $21.6 million contract.

Ed Tiryakian, one of Laettner's agents, said his client will make $2.1 million as a rookie, with the salary increasing annually.

He'll make $5 million in the contract's final year. All money is guaranteed.

The $3.6 million average makes Laettner the highest-paid player in team history.

The 6-foot-11 forward, who led Duke to national titles in 1991 and 1992, fills out a Timberwolves roster that is almost entirely different from the one they started with last season.

Laettner will travel with the Wolves to Grand Forks, N.D., for Thursday night's exhibition opener against the New Jersey Nets.

Laettner was the third-overall pick in the draft.

Laettner becomes the third of this year's top eight NBA draft choices with contracts. No. 1 Shaquille O'Neal agreed to a seven-year, $40 million deal with Orlando in August, and No. 5 LaPhonso Ellis signed a five-year contract for $13 million with Denver last week.

able to conduct the negotiations at this level," team president Bob Stein said before Wednesday's news conference.

"He comes in feeling good, we're feeling good, and the people around him are feeling good. Everything is very positive."

The Timberwolves, who began workouts last Friday, wrapped up the first part of their training camp on Wednesday at St. Cloud State.

They then return to Minneapolis before leaving for Thursday night's game.

Laettner missed the first five days of two-a-day practices.

Wolves coach Jimmy Rodgers said he was not sure whether the rookie power forward would play in the team's first two exhibition games.

"I don't know what his physical condition is, and he doesn't have one idea yet what we're doing," Rodgers said. "I think Christian is a smart basketball player. I've seen some guys step right in. I don't think we're too far into this."

17 points on five goals and a league-high seven assists. This past weekend he scored a goal and had two assists despite suffering a broken nose in the first of two games.

Davidson is tied for second in the league with seven goals. Added with one assist he is in third place in total scoring with 15 points. He has caught fire as of late, scoring four goals in Eastern's last four games.

After losing its first six games of the season, Illinois-Chicago has won four consecutive contests including two in league play. The Flames are the only other undefeated team in the conference at 2-0.

Last year's leading scorer, Mike Rigas, has been silent lately but still has seven goals and an assist. But sophomore Hercules Anastasakis has helped pick up the slack offensively with five goals and four assists, good for fifth in league scoring.

Anastasakis was named Rawlings/Mid-Con Soccer Athlete of the Week. The Ontario, Canada, native scored a hat trick and added an assist in the Flames' 4-1 win over DePaul and has scored at least one point in three of UIC's last four games.

Struggling Northern Illinois University ended a five-game losing streak last Tuesday with a 2-1 win over 1991 NCAA qualifier Wisconsin-Madison. The Huskies are now 2-8-1 overall and 0-3 in the Mid-Con after being picked to finish second in the preseason coaches poll.

Case and point

Junior setter Casey propels Eastern spikers

by JEFF GLADE
staff writer

Having success that no one could imagine at the beginning of the season, the Eastern volleyball squad has moved itself to a position to battle for the Mid-Continent Conference title. Hitters Kim Traub, Susie Green and Beth Foster generally grab the headlines with strong hitting and scoring numbers, but the real key to the team may be hiding behind the limelight in junior setter Shannon Casey. Setters are the unsung heroes of the game, playing the roll of cheerleader and offensive director. They set the tempo of the game and get the ball where the headline-grabbing scorers need to be; yet they do all of this without receiving any of the notoriety.

"If I have a bad night, then the team tends to have a bad night," said Casey. "If I'm off, then the hitters don't get the ball where it needs to be, and the team tends to play flat. If the team is going to be successful, the setter needs to be on every night."

Casey has been getting stronger as the season has gone on, now totally recovered from a sprained ankle that caused her problems through much of the early season. That has led her to see more and more court time in the position she shares with fellow setter Amy Van Eekeren.

"Amy and I try to help each other out with our games every once in a while, and we want to help the other to be successful when they're out on the floor," said Casey. "There's not a lot of difference between the way either of us play, which helps the team because there is a measure of consistency in what they expect from us."

"Personally, I prefer a quick game when I'm out on the floor, and like to run quick sets and other fast moving plays like that ... keeping us pumped up and the other team off balance."

As with the rest of the squad, Casey is getting ready for Friday evening's contest with Northern Illinois in DeKalb. With Eastern at 7-1 in the Mid-Con, and the Huskies at 8-0, the game will be crucial in both team's hopes to top the standings at the end of the regular season.

"Everybody has to have their best game of the year and we have to play smart all the time," said Casey. "Northern is probably more physical than we are, but if we can play smart, move the ball and find the holes, I really think we can beat them."

"Realistically, I think we will come out with second place in the conference and Northern will finish first. I think we'll make the conference (tournament) finals and probably face Northern again. Even if they win that, we should still move on to a post-season tournament. Right now, a tournament is my goal for the season."

downs. Bush averages 38.3 yards per game and has caught one touchdown pass.

The Leatherneck running game is steadily improving. Freshman halfback Kendall McDonald, who has only two starts under his belt, is coming off a 156-yard rushing game in which he scored two touchdowns.

"McDonald is starting to come into his own," Spoo said. "He's not big, but he is very explosive, very quick, fast and has good balance. With each start he is getting better."

The Leathernecks may be without their backbone on the defensive side of the ball. Ken McMillan, a preseason All-Gateway, led Western in tackles last season with 46 unassisted and 124 total. He was suspended indefinitely, but his status is still uncertain.

Last season, Western Illinois beat Eastern 16-15 in the closing minutes of the game at O'Brien Stadium.

3-run ninth lifts Braves to Series

Cabrera's hit beats Pirates, sets up showdown with Jays

ATLANTA (AP) — A heart-stopping, ninth-inning comeback ended with another World Series for the Atlanta Braves and another fall failure for the Pittsburgh Pirates.

The Braves, in a wild rally that ended with a play at the plate, beat the Pirates 3-2 Wednesday night to reach the World Series for the second straight year. The stunning loss gave Pittsburgh its third straight postseason failure.

And this was the most painful of all.

The Pirates were three outs away from their first World Series since 1979, but Doug Drabek, who pitched out of a bases-loaded jam in the sixth and stranded two runners in the seventh, didn't have one more escape act in him.

Terry Pendleton, only 1 for 21 in the series left-handed, doubled to right field. Drabek, pitching on three days' rest for only the second time in four years, was wearing down and so was the Pirates' defense.

David Justice hit a routine grounder, but second baseman Jose Lind, who made only six errors all season, booted the ball and two were on. The crowd, almost resigned to defeat a few minutes earlier, was standing and chopping.

Sid Bream, the former Pirate, walked and Drabek, his control gone, was finished and the Pirates were forced to go to a bullpen that had been ineffective all year.

Pirates manager Jim Leyland went to Stan Belinda, who led the team with 18 saves but had lost his job as a closer late in the season and had just three saves in the second half of the season.

Belinda quickly showed why.

Ron Gant almost won it with a drive to left that Barry Bonds caught two feet in front of the wall, scoring Pendleton and making it 2-1.

Then Damon Berryhill walked and the bases were loaded again. The Pirates were an out away when pinch-hitter Brian Hunter popped out and Braves manager Bobby Cox, his bench almost exhausted, sent up Francisco Cabrera.

Cabrera lined a shot between third and shortstop to score Justice and Bream barely beat Bonds' desperation throw to the plate that was well off-line.

Blue Jays 9, A's 2

TORONTO (AP) — At last, a real World Series.

The Toronto Blue Jays finally learned how to win in October and took the World Series out of the United States for the first time by beating Oakland 9-2 Wednesday to win the AL playoffs.

Beneath hundreds of red maple leaves, Juan Guzman did what Jack Morris and David Cone could not do, winning on three days' rest, to wrap up Game 6. Joe Carter and Candy Maldonado made Guzman's second victory of the series easier with home runs that put Toronto ahead 6-4 after three innings.

Roberto Alomar, who turned things around with a game-tying homer off Dennis Eckersley in Game 4 — one of the Blue Jays' playoff-record 10 — capped the series off with an RBI-single in the eighth. He was 11 for 26 in the series tying the record for hits in an AL playoff.

Davidson, Agyeman among top scorers

With the Mid-Continent Conference soccer season about halfway over, Wisconsin-Green Bay appears to be the team to beat.

Mid-Con soccer

The Phoenix, under first year coach Dave Poggi, have raced out to an 11-1-1 record overall and a perfect 3-0 mark in the Mid-Con. The first-place Phoenix have also started to receive votes in the national rankings but have not broken into the top 25. They are ranked third in the Great Lakes Region, their highest ranking ever.

Green Bay has found a successful formula in a pair of young goalkeepers. Sophomore Paul Schmidt and freshman Michael Demchenko have split time in the net this year and have come up big. The two have combined for 10 shutouts and no team has scored on them since Sept. 12.

Schmidt is currently ranked No. 1 in the Mid-Con with a dazzling 0.37 goals against average and has seven shutouts in eight games. Demchenko, a standout goalie from Arlington Heights, has played in six games and owns a 0.91 gaa with three shutouts.

Daren Moore provides the offensive spark for the Phoenix, leading the Mid-Con with eight goals. He is tied for first in total points with 17. Midfielders Mark Lichfield and Mark Schlenker are also among the league leaders with 11 points and 10 points respectively.

Other soccer notes in the Mid-Continent Conference this week:

•Eastern has two of the top three scorers in the conference in sophomore forward Paul Agyeman and senior forward Jim Davidson. Agyeman is tied for first with Green Bay's Moore at Eastern defensive backs like Shavez Hawkins (left) will have their hands full again Saturday when Eastern visits Macomb to take on the Leathernecks of Western Illinois, who boast the Gateway Football Conference's top passing attack.

WIU pass attack leads Gateway

By KEITH FARROLL
Associate sports editor

Last season, Western Illinois proved to be a team that could hold its own when it went to the Division I-AA football playoffs. The Leathernecks were one of two Gateway Football Conference programs to play in the postseason.

This season, third-year head coach Randy Ball is hoping that his team can gain that form again. The Leathernecks next test comes at 2 p.m. Saturday when they play host to Eastern.

So far, Western is 3-3 overall with a 1-1 Gateway mark. The Leathernecks are coming off a 50-42 win over the Southern Illinois Salukis. Western's only conference loss was to No. 17 Southwest Missouri State 16-13.

It is no secret that Western Illinois has an explosive offense. It is second in the Gateway in total offense, averaging 368.67 yards per game and 28.7 points per contest.

The key reason for the offensive spark is the Leatherneck aerial attack. Western Illinois stands on top of the conference in passing offense and is led by senior quarterback Donny Simmons.

"As far as completion percentage, he is the No. 1 guy in the conference," said Eastern head coach Bob Spoo. "He's an accurate guy; if you give him more time, then he is very accurate."

On the season, Simmons is averaging 218 yards per game through the air while connecting on 14 touchdown passes. His passing game would not be complete if it wasn't for three of his receivers being in the top 10 in the conference.

"They have excellent receivers," Spoo said. "Three of their four receivers are in the top 10 in the conference and if that doesn't tell you something... They are very capable."

Seniors Steve Decker, Demeris Johnson and Jeff Bush are the key targets of Simmons. Decker averages more than 60 yards per game receiving and 4.17 catches per game. He has a conference-high eight receiving touchdowns. Johnson averages 60 yards per game and four catches. He has been on the receiving end of four touch-
